

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of making an electrode on a semiconductor structure comprises utilizing a mask to remove metal from a layer of metal on a semiconductor structure and then using the same mask to remove material from the semiconductor structure. The resulting structure can ultimately form an optoelectronic device, such as an LED.

330175_1.DOC